Call for Resumé og Paper Abstract.

NORSMA 11 23. - 24. November 2023 in Copenhagen deals with important questions about mathematics and special education in the Nordic countries, where theories, empirical results and experiences from practice are presented. We are through this announcement interested in both results from development and research already finalized, experiences from on-going work, and ideas for future collaboration. We are also interested in theoretical contributions to fundamental issues as what is meant by special needs education in mathematics and as how to characterize being in difficulties in mathematics.

We distinguish between two types of written conference contributions.

A. Summary of development work or presentation of a research project.

- A summary of a development and/or research project of maximum 300-400 words excluding any references (See NORSMA Template)
- Summary (A) can be written in Nordic language or English.
- Summary to be submitted electronically via NORSMA conference page \(Link\) (www.matematikdidaktik.dk)
- Deadline for submission of summary is April 3, 2023

B. Abstract for article

- An abstract of article presenting research results of maximum 300-400 words excluding any references (See NORSMA Template)
- Abstract (B) can be written in Nordic language or English.
- Abstract to be submitted via NORSMA conference page \(Link\) (www.matematikdidaktik.dk)
- Deadline for abstract submission is April 3, 2023

Summary (A) and Abstract (B) will all undergo a review process. Approved summary and abstract will be published in the programme of the conference.

The review approved summary (A) and abstract (B) is required for presentation at the NORSMA conference.

After the conference, there is a possibility for reviewed and approved articles/papers to be published in Nordic language in the Danish journal MONA <https://tidsskrift.dk/mona/index>
